To Section V

1. Reference is made to the following documents:

D1: US-A-5 996 440 (ISONO HIROSHI ET AL) 7 December 1999 (1999-12-07)

2. From D1 (cf. figures 1, 25 and 26), which represents the closest state of the art, discloses already the features of claim 1 but that the expandable slot comprises movable lateral walls along its longer sides projecting into said expandable slot which are moved out of said expandable slot by said pedal axis by exceeding a mechanical limit loading of said pedal axis so that said expandable slot receives said pedal axis.
3. Since the features of claim 1 are not known from D1 it appears that claim 1 meets the requirements of Article 33(2) PCT.
4. Starting from a pedal security system known from D1, the additional feature of claim 1 solves the objective problem of reducing the risk of injury of the driver and being cheaper from a manufacture and maintenance point of view.

None of the available prior art teaches that the aforementioned objective problem can be solved with the combination of features of claim 1. It appears that claim 1 meets the requirements of Article 33(3) PCT.

5. Claims 2 to 7 define further embodiments of the pedal security system according to claim 1. It appears therefore that also claims 2 to 7 meet the requirements of Article 33(3) PCT.
6. Since the pedal security system according to claims 1 to 7 can be made in vehicle industry, it appears that claims 1 to 7 meet the requirements of Article 33(4) PCT.
